Private collection, London

This work is accompanied by a certificate of authenticity issued by Lélia Pissarro.

Ludovic-Rodo Pissarro was a dedicated watercolourist and produced an impressive amount of work in that media throughout his career. In 1933, when he started work on the catalogue raisonné of his father, Camille Pissarro's œuvre, he just about gave up painting in oils but continued to produce watercolours, always carrying sketchbook and paints with him.

This is a classic post-Impressionist scene has a very similar technique to that of his father's. Within the works of Rodo, we consider this to be one of the best examples of his watercolours.
